

NUMBER 94

Campbell Bros. Druggists
NASHVILLE, TENN.

There were 47 deaths in Louisville last week.

Hon. Henry W. Sage has given $60,000 to Cornell University, Albany, N. Y., to endow a new professorship in ethics and moral philosophy.

Jos. C. Mackin, the notorious ballot-box stuffer of Chicago, has been taken to the Joliet penitentiary to serve out a five-years' term for perjury.

England is paying no more attention to her war with King Theba, of Burma, than a school-master does to an obstreperous boy who has to be spanked and kept in.

The County Infirmary near Sandusky, Ohio, burned Friday night and five insane women were destroyed in the flames. The Superintendent was badly injured and may die.

The Henderson Journal will begin the publication of a six-column daily to-day. It will contain telegraphic news and will be issued every morning before breakfast. It will be independent in politics.

The Washington specials announce that the President shook hands with 184 people in seven minutes Friday afternoon. Mr. Cleveland is certainly well up in at least one of the qualifications of a successful politician.

The actual losses of the Galveston fire are put at $1,000,000, above insurance. 470 houses were burned. The city is unable to relieve the distress of these burned out, and is accepting all the outside help it can get.

John B. Bowman, a leading citizen of East St. Louis, Ill., was assassinated on the street in that city last Friday evening, by some unknown dastard who shot him in the back of the head and made good his escape.

It seems that King Milan and Prince Alexander can't both occupy the Bulgarian Sofia at the same time. These b-lissce princelings should ask some young man in love to explain how to divide a sofa without fighting over it.

Only four Internal Revenue Collectors remain who were in office when the Democratic party came into power, and two of these will go in a few days. This will do very well for one department, but how about the postoffices?

Jno. L. Sullivan, the puglist, has signed a contract with John Connors, a sporting man of New York, to make a tour of Europe and Australia during the year beginning next February and fight anybody and in any way Connors wants him to. He will be paid $100,000 for the year.

Maj. Henry T. Stanton, of the Frankfort Yeoman, is the second editor treated by the Interior Journal in its series of sketches of prominent Kentucky journalists. The biographical sketch is headed by a very correct likeness of the fat and good looking author of "The Moneyless Man."

The grand jury of Montgomery county, Tennessee, has indicted the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company for discrimination, extortion and obstruction of traffic, as a public carrier, in refusing to carry salt from Clarksville brought in by river at the same rates as that brought in by its own line.

Mr. Cuthbert B. Jones has addressed an open letter to Hon. J. Floyd King, Congressman from the Fourth Louisiana District, branding him as "a liar and a coward, a poltroon and a scoundrel." The letter is called forth by the active opposition of King to Jones' appointment to a position in the consular service.

Sam Jones proposes to turn his evangelistic batteries loose upon Washington this winter. The Reverend Samuel will run against a sang when he undertakes to fight Satan in a city composed largely of Republican office-holders who have about come to the conclusion that there is no "day of judgment" ahead of them. However he may preach some of the disconsolate and disheartened Democratic applicants into seeking religion instead of wasting their time seeking office under the present administration.

The Paducah Standard wants the Western Kentucky Press Association to meet in that city and we know of no place that we would rather have it meet. We think it would be a good idea to hold a meeting as soon after the holidays as possible, to consider matters of business and public interest. The newspaper boys of Western Kentucky are a hard-working set and waste but little time seeking after pleasure, but a meeting of this kind would be something more than a frolic and pleasure jaunt. There is no reason why the press should not have an organized association, having for its objects the promotion of the business interests of newspapers and the consideration of such subjects as will advance the material interests of Western Kentucky. We would like for such a meeting to be held and every paper should be represented. Let the editors of the First Superior Court district speak out on this subject and if they favor the holding of such a meeting the proper steps will be taken for holding it at such time as suits the convenience of the majority.

SERVIANS REPULSED.

THE BULGARIANS UNDER PRINCE ALEXANDER WIN SEVERAL VICTORIES.

The Servians Driven Back And an Armistice Agreed Upon to Bury the Dead.

GREATER THAN REPORTED.

SEMLIN, Nov. 19.—Reliable reports received here, state that the Servian loss at Silvitza yesterday was three times greater than that given in the official accounts, and actually exceed the previous total loss since the outbreak of hostilities. Prince Alexander was in the thick of the battle from beginning to end. The Servians noticed that he first rode a white horse and afterwards a brown horse. It is believed the white horse was shot from under him.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19.—Prince Alexander, in his request to the Porte for help, states that in compliance with the Sultan's demand, he has withdrawn the Bulgarian troops from Eastern Roumelia.

TO GATHER THE DEAD.

BELGRADE, Nov. 20.—It is rumored that the proposed armistice is to enable the two armies to gather their dead. The soldiers wounded in the recent fight are suffering severely from the inclemency of the weather, there being no habitations near.

HAVE BECOME DISPIRITED.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Dispatches received here state that the Servians have become dispirited over their recent reverses. The Bulgarians, on the other hand, have been aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm by the example of Prince Alexander and the victories gained under his leadership. They have gradually driven back the Servians' advance line until the Bulgarians' forward line of entrenchment is within a mile of Dragoman. In the fighting yesterday the Servian loss was 800 men killed and wounded. One of Prince Alexander's aides was killed during the height of yesterday's engagement.

SUFFERING SOLDIERS.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Dispatches from Silvitza state that only a few shots were exchanged between the Servians and Bulgarians at the front yesterday. Prince Alexander intends to attack the Servian forces at Dragoman to-day, the weather permitting. Both sides are constantly hurrying reinforcements to the front. The battlefield is still strewn with unattended dying and dead soldiers. The medical and ambulance corps of both armies are wholly inadequate to meet their present wants, and many of the wounded who are unable to assist themselves are left to perish where they fall.

SERVIA MUST RETIRE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 21.—The Journal De St. Petersburg in an editorial to-day says: Servia has no reason to continue the campaign now that Prince Alexander has announced that he will evacuate Eastern Roumelia. If King Milan persists in going to Sofia it will cost him more than he foresees. The Powers, as the speech of Emperor William at the opening of the Reichstag on Thursday indicated, have the right to secure respect for the treaties relating to the Balkan States.

SOPIA, Nov. 22.—Diplomatic representatives here have been forbidden to send cipher telegrams.

After a stiff battle this afternoon the Servians were driven out of Dragoman Pass by Bulgarians, who then occupied the Pass.

The Louisville Times has this to say of J. H. Mitchell, the newly elected Republican-Democratic Senator from Oregon:

"Mitchell was in the Senate once before, during Grant's first term as President. His name is not Mitchell, but Hipple. He lived in Pennsylvania many years ago, and married there. He deserted his wife and went West, where his natural endowments soon procured him advancement and importance. He made money, and changed his name to J. H. Mitchell, married again and became a candidate for Senator. When he was elected, his Pennsylvania wife, who had lapsed into indifference about him so long as he was in obscurity, indulged in a great deal of bluster, and threatened to place a serious obstacle in the new Senator's upward path, but a judicious use of money procured the silence of the disaffected wife and the scandal was hushed up. When Mitchell's term expired he returned to the Pacific Slope, and has since been chiefly engaged in the service of the North Pacific railroad. He is a man of ability, cunning, watchful and zealous in the interest of his employers; but his return to the Senate adds nothing to the respectability or influence of that body. When the roll of great names which are naturally sought for in this assembly is called Mitchell's will not be among them."

Will T. McGrath and Lillie May Gray were secretly married in Louisville, Nov. 11. The bride at once returned to her father and it was kept a secret until the newspapers got hold of the affair. A suit for the possession of the bride then came up, which was ended by the girl's agreeing to stay with her father and sue for a divorce. She is but 16 years old and fraud is alleged against McGrath in the procurement of the marriage license. In the petition for a divorce.

Philip Davis, aged 78, was burned to death in Madison county. His clothing caught on fire while he was trying to put out a burning fence.

KENTUCKY KNOWLEDGE.

Albert Walker, col., dropped dead in Louisville, Friday.

Hardsburg had a $17,000 fire last Thursday morning at 3 o'clock. Insurance very light.

J. H. Culler has retired from the Elkton Progress and Geo. B. McClellan is now sole editor and proprietor.

The big meeting at the Cumberland Presbyterian church in Princeton has already resulted in 200 conversions.

The breach of promise suit of Bettie Turner against T. M. Ryan, for $5,000 was called at Mayfield last week.

The Inquirer complains that the audacious eat peanuts in the Owensboro opera house during performances.

Mrs. Nancy Huston Banks, of Henderson, has written a novel, called "Stairs of Sand," which has just been published.

J. Frederick and Alice P. Peters, deaf mutes, were married in Louisville Thursday. The Rev. Job Turner, also a mute, officiating.

Gen. F. W. Waters, a prominent Lexington lawyer, died suddenly at Dalton, Ga., where he had gone on a hunt, last week.

John Palmer shot and killed Crit Gassaway in a row over a nickel, at Bowling Green, Thursday. Both were colored gamblers.

The colored people will hold a State Convention at Lexington next Thursday to consider questions of importance to their race.

Miss Florence Fields, another Louisville girl, has gone on the stage. She plays a modest character in the Edie Elster company this season.

Col. Hugh W. Rogers, deputy U. S. Marshal, reported fatally shot by moonshiners at Mt. Pleasant, Harlan Co., will get well and is now out of danger. A man named Howard has been arrested charged with the assassination.

A. J. Ringo's residence, in Menifee county, was burned while the family were at church. Insured for $1,700. On Sunday night the jail at Frenchburg, Menifee Co., a log building, was burned. Two prisoners were in it, out were released.

L. R. Pithman, of Ashland, and Miss Marie Hardie, of Frankfort, eloped to Jeffersonville, Ind., and were married Thursday. They ran away because they couldn't agree as to whether a Catholic or a Presbyterian clergyman should perform the ceremony at Frankfort.

Among the fourth-class Postmasters appointed Friday were the following in Kentucky: J. D. Atkins, Williamsburg, Whitney county, vice M. B. Sutton; Jacob Miller, Saxe, Jefferson county, vice W. L. Meeks; Edward W. Pittman, Pittsburg, Laurel county, vice J. M. Bailey; John R. Harris, Laketon, Ballard county, vice J. N. Campbell; J. L. Johnson, Grassy Creek, Morgan county, vice vice M. B. McClure, Jr.

Thimian I. Willis and Miss Lizzie Henry eloped from a protracted meeting in Clark county Wednesday night, and went to Lexington, 30 miles, on horseback. They there took a train for Maysville and while in the act of crossing the river to Aberdeen, Ohio, Thursday morning, were arrested upon authority of the angry father telegraphed to the police. The young lady was brought back to her home on Friday. She was but 16 years old and very pretty while Willis was a grass-widower 35 years old.

Mrs. Rhoda Howard died in Bath County, Kentucky, Tuesday, aged 116. She was wonderfully well preserved, and retained her faculties to the last. She was three times married, one of her husbands being in the Revolutionary War. Four children survive her, the youngest being 80 years old. She was born in North Carolina, and came to Kentucky in 1794. She smoked a pipe, and never took a dose of medicine.

The names of the Governor's carriage horses are respectfully "Joe" and "Jim," in honor of Senator Blackburn and Secretary of the State McKenzie. In disposition and temperament they reflect very faithfully the distinguishing traits of their illustrious namesakes. "Joe" is inclined to be nervous and flighty, can't stand a tight rein, and chews his bit like a two-year old. He has plenty of go, but needs a powerful sight of watching. "Jim" is steady, careful, and cool, and travels with a measured, swinging gait, that is always the same. "Joe" often needs the lash to keep him down, and "Jim" often needs it to hurry him along.—Capital.

Colored Convention.

The colored people of Christian county held a convention at the Court House last Thursday to select delegates to a state Convention at Lexington, Nov. 26. I. H. Jones was elected chairman and B. J. Garrett secretary. The meeting was opened with prayer. A committee was appointed to draft resolutions, which reported resolutions naming delegates calling upon the county representative to use his efforts to have the word "white" stricken from the city charter with reference to police judge and city councilmen, and endorsing Esq. A. H. Anderson for county judge and John Boyd for reelection as sheriff. The report was adopted and about 60 delegates appointed, including the leading colored men of the city and county. W. J. Simmons, of Louisville, was named as proxy, should none of the delegates go to Lexington Thursday.

THE WEED.

General Tobacco News.

During the week ending November 7th the sales of Leaf Tobacco in the Litching market amounted to 111,320 pounds, as against 139,900 pounds the previous week. For the year, commencing October 1st, the sales aggregated 817,700 pounds, as against 681,100 pounds the corresponding period of 1881.

Henderson (N. C.) Gold Leaf, Nov. 5.—The tobacco market opens well. The breaks at the different warehouses have been very good this week. All grades of the new crop tobacco command fair prices, all bright colored goods being in demand and readily taken at full value.

John Cox, of Portland, Me., has gathered 59,999 tags from plug tobacco, and sent them somewhere in the hope of securing the $50,000 prize offered by manufacturers.

But three weeks now intervene before the convening of Congress, and the first message of President Cleveland will be delivered to that body. It is awaited with interest, and expected to define the policy of the party in power in the leading question of the day. Tobacco men will be especially interested in what he may have to say with reference to the internal revenue tax and the Spanish reciprocity treaty, though it is generally believed that the President deems it expedient to continue the present revenue tax as long as a large income is necessary, and it is more than probable that the majority of Congress will coincide with this view, and refuse to further alter or abolish the revenue on tobacco.

The list of tobacco mortgages filed in the county clerk's office this year is the longest known for several years. There are 319 mortgages and 31 landlord's liens.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Thirty-two thousand cigars were delivered at Adams express office yesterday for shipment by J. S. Bottenweber. They were all manufactured last week at the Lynch (Craw) cigar factory, and are consigned to different points, some of them going to Brandenburg—right in to the heart of what is usually considered Louisville's territory.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Penitentiary Notes.

Capital.

Two deaths occurred in the penitentiary on Wednesday from consumption. Jeremiah Burnett, white, from Madison county, and Hugh Adams, colored, were the parties. Burnett's remains went to Madison county for burial, and Adams' to the penitentiary burying ground.

The penitentiary contains about four hundred and seventy convicts at this time. In round numbers seven hundred are employed outside of the walls, principally in the mining districts.

The penitentiary wall belonging to the Catron woman, Miss Josie Fritz, which still opened its eyes inside the prison walls, has progressed far enough to place a lively spell of coils on the boards. Its squalls have the pitch of two hundred pounds pressure to the square inch.

Andy Weyler, the Louisville saloonist, who killed Harry Clay, broom-maker, and Wing the city attorney of Princeton, who killed city marshal Kruger, is running a sewing machine in the clothing manufacturing department.

Chair making, broom making, and women's cheap shoes seem to be the chief industries.

One colored woman is said to have made thirty pairs of pants in a single day. Her time expires in thirty days, and she is anxious to find a good home in Frankfort. She is reported to be a most excellent washer and ironer, and a good cook. The offense for which she is imprisoned is the common one of grand larceny.

One of the big mistakes made by people who have not closely studied the characters in fiction's stripes, is in supposing all convicts villains. There are as good fellows in the penitentiary as you will meet anywhere. Unfortunately circumstances do the work for many a poor fellow who previously never dream of committing a crime. Opportunity lured the devil in him and hurried him on before the sober second thought had time to assert itself.

If the corners of the mouth are habitually drawn down in a frown and the brows wrinkled in perplexity, those features will gradually assume an aspect of repellent seriousness. On the other hand, the man who smiles a great deal will acquire a pleasant expression. A Yankee has invented an apparatus to be worn at night, which he fancies will not only lend an agreeable expression to a face that has not yet become set, but will obliterate and rearrange the unpleasant lines that time and circumstances have established.

The Chicago Fire.

The great Chicago fire occurred in October, 1871. There were 18,000 houses, extending over 2,000 acres, burned. Two hundred persons perished and nearly 100,000 were rendered homeless. The property burned was estimated at $200,000,000. This stupendous calamity awakened the practical sympathy of the civilized world. Great Britain and other civilized countries subscribed money freely for the sufferers. The city was entirely rebuilt in a style of great magnificence within two years.

Turned to Stone.

(Courier Journal.)

Sexton William Claytor, of the old Western cemetery, yesterday morning made a remarkable discovery, while exhuming the body of Mrs. Catherine Liebegott, who died last six years ago. Claytor recently received orders from the relatives to take the body from the grave and prepare it for interment in Cave Hill.

Mr. Claytor began the work of opening the grave. He completed the excavation, and then called in the assistance of one of his laborers. The two endeavored to lift the coffin, but were astonished to find they could not move it. Mr. Claytor called two more assistants, and the united efforts of the four men were barely sufficient to raise the casket from the grave.

When placed on the ground the men found the top had fallen in and exposed the face of the occupant. An investigation revealed that the body of Mrs. Liebegott was completely petrified. When the fact became known it created great excitement in the quiet neighborhood of the old cemetery. The curiosity of the residents was so great that a policeman was called to keep back the crowd that gathered around the coffin.

The dead woman's son, Henry Liebegott, was called, and came attended by his family. They made an examination of the petrified body, and agreed that the face was exactly as in life. Several physicians came to see the curious spectacle. They found the trunk, head and arms hard as flint, except in a few spots where the petrification apparently was not complete. The face was a peculiar grayish black. The skin was marked by a number of small depressions that gave the subject the appearance of being pitted with small-pox. The eye-sockets were empty, and the hair, which retained its natural position, was gray. On the throat a soft spot was visible, on which an impression could be made with the finger. The abdomen was also soft, but elsewhere the body was completely petrified, and might have been taken for a statue set in grayish stone.

The body was taken to Cave Hill cemetery, where it was interred. From a near relative of the deceased a history of the case was obtained.

Catherine Liebegott was an unusually healthy German, and lived with her husband, Henry Liebegott, who is a soldier by trade, at his residence on Twentieth street, between Market and Main.

During the month of September, 1880, she was taken ill with pneumonia, and died after a short illness. Then her body was given into the charge of Chris. Miller, the undertaker, who placed it on ice. It was buried in the Western Cemetery two days after her death.

Several down-town physicians are of the opinion that the body was not thoroughly petrified, but was only covered by a deposit of carbonate of lime, which had seeped through the coffin and dripped on the body. This afterwards hardened and caused the appearance of petrification.

Having used 'Tongaline' in neuralgia and acute rheumatism, and am well satisfied with its beneficial effects, have also found it very efficacious in nervous diseases.

Names in China.

In China a person may have four different sets of names to use with the family name.

A name is given to the child when about a month old, which is called the milk name. On this occasion, presents of money or jewelry are given to the child by friends, and the parents in return give a feast. At the time of his marriage the young man takes another name, which is called his married name. Persons of some position, as students, gentlemen, merchants and those in official stations may have an official name, which they use on cards and in signing letters. The milk name, if sufficiently elegant, may be used as the official name. Then there is, in addition, the nick name used among familiar friends when addressing each other in conversation or by writing. The unmarried man, however, has only his milk name. The laboring and ordinary classes have only the milk names and the married name.

How are the given names selected in China? They are usually selected from a school book and consist of two words of good meaning. Thus the name "Chin Fun" signifies extending knowledge.

Do these statements apply to women as well as to men? Women have only one name, the milk name, which they retain till their marriage; after which they are called Mr.—Mrs. Sau, meaning young married woman; or Mr.—Mrs. P., meaning married woman. For the wives of high officials another term, Tai Thi, is employed.

Like His Father.

The other evening there were several visitors at Col. Grady's house. "Showing-off" takes great delight in "showing-off" his little son, and when the boy appeared at the parlor door the colonel said:

"Come in, Henry. Speak to the ladies and gentlemen. Ah, that's a man."

"He is a fine little fellow," said Mrs. Grady, one of the visitors. "Come here, my little man."

The boy approached her, and permitted her to lift him into her lap. "Why, you are heavy. How old are you?"

"Six years, goin' on seven."

"Yes, and you'll soon be a man. What are you going to do when you become a man?"

"Do like pa does."

"How does he do?"

"Oh, sometimes when he comes home at night he falls over a chair."

"Henry!" exclaimed the colonel. "Falls over a chair, and when maw gets mad he says it's a pretty way for a woman to go on just because a man takes two beers and—"

THE SAME FIVE CENTS.

Why a Choleric Old Chap "Set" Em Up for the Conductor.

San Francisco News Letter.

Scene—A Sutter street dunny; elderly gentleman of red and choleric face, who appeared engrossed in his evening paper, but held up his face in a moan awaiting the conductor's call. Before that functionary arrived a waggish young man, who occupied the seat directly behind the old gentleman, reached over and took the nickel from his hand. He was too much absorbed in his paper to look up or listen for the punch and went on reading innocently, while the young man cautiously slipped the nickel back into the wide earred pantaloon pocket from whence it came, and went into pantomime contortions of delight at the coupling row.

The conductor entered, touching the old man on the shoulder, and said: "Fare, sir?"

"Old party turned around angrily, expecting the bell-puncher to recognize his face and wilt at his error. Instead of wilting the conductor mildly repeated:

"Fare, sir?"

"Are you in the habit of collecting fare twice, young man?" with severe sarcasm.

"No, sir," replied conductor. "Fare, sir?"

Here the waggish young man appeared to explode with some internal commotion; but managed to restrain it, while his victim glared at the conductor and said with a portentous calmness:

"I paid you my fare once and I won't pay it again. Do you understand that?"

"You are mistaken, sir," said the weary official, "this is my first round since the car started."

By this time all the passengers were taking a lively interest in the dispute, and the old gentleman's wrath became somewhat mixed with chagrin at the evident feeling against the undue importance he attached to five cents.

Still his native obstinacy held away and he snorted, "Go to the devil! I tell you I will not be imposed upon—not even for five cents! Walker?"

Turning to the young man who was the real culprit, "didn't you see me pay this conductor?"

"No, sir," replied the unblinking Walker, who it now transpired, was an acquaintance of the victimized old party. "No, sir; I didn't see you pay it."

"I'll bet a thousand dollars I did! But, never mind," shoving his hand into his pocket, "rather than talk any more I'll pay it again—Hello! What's this? I only had one nickel!" producing it, "Conductor, when we get to the junction I'll set 'em up!"

What Did Mr. Cleveland Whisper?

The crowd at the President's reception yesterday was not so large as usual. In the middle of the stream of visitors was a small, rather loudly dressed lady of uncertain age, who was leading a little girl baby by the hand. The little thing stood scarcely two feet high. The mother smiled sweetly upon the President as she grasped his hand, and he smiled upon her. Encouraged, perhaps by this, she stood still, and then remarked, "I don't think the two-foot-high cherub."

"And a pretty little thing it is, madam," replied Mr. Cleveland, the smile still visible around his lips. "And it's only two years old," persisted the mother. "Won't you kiss it?"

"The President looked at the crowd yet to be shaken, looked at the little wife he had been asked to embrace, and the smile fell with a dull, sickening thud. He whispered something in the lady's ear and she retired.—Washington Post.

Sleepers.

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which the sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper carries the sleeper, while he sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper, the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper, until the sleeper who carries the sleeper jumps off the sleeper and wakes the sleeper by striking the sleeper in the sleeper on the sleeper.
